Unlike other cemetery books, this one is crafted to meet the genealogist's needs by paying special attention to the plot and row arrangement of the graves. It presents transcripts of 58 Spartanburg County cemeteries in their entirety. Among the churches presented are Philadelphia Baptist, Bethesda Baptist, Concord Methodist, Mount Cannel Methodist, New Hope Methodist, and North Pacolet Presbyterian. In all, 21 churches, including 7 extinct ones, are published. Also, 34 family cemeteries, and 3 community and private cemeteries appear here.

Marriages From THE CAROLINA SPARTAN Newspapers 1866-1869, compiled and edited by Faye Berry Emory 27 pages, indexed. Soft cover $6.50

This is a complete listing of 1866-1869 marriages found in THE CAROLINA SPARTAN, a Spartanburg. South Carolina newspaper. Although these marriages are found in Spartanburg newspapers, they are not confined to that area. Many pertain to persons living in other counties of South Carolina and a few concern persons living in other states.

The Descendents of James Crook and Related Families 1746-1978. Compiled and edited by Martha King Neubauer $42.00 463 pages, including 63 page index.

The society has acquired the 28 remaining copies of this detailed study of the James Crook family of Virginia and later Spartanburg County, S.C. However, the late Mrs. Neubauer did not limit this work to this particular family. She included information on other branches of the Crook family in England and America. She also included pictures of tombstones and various Crook homes. The second part includes information on the following related families: Anthony, Bane, Barry, Brockman, Burk, Coleman, Evins, King, Mann, Newman, Patton, Stallworth, Travis, and White families. "Bits and Pieces" (Part III) is an abstract from records of persons of the same surname, but with whom no proof of relationship has been established.

Dr. W.H. Belton died at his residence in the town of Colusa, Cal., on November 16, 1903. He was born at Newberry, S.C., in 1838, but his parents removed to Lowndes County, Miss., while he was very young. He was at the Western Military Institute at Florence, Ala., when the war began. A company was formed at the town of Crawford, Miss., near his home, and he joined Company E, Eleventh Mississippi Infantry, as a private. It was commanded by Capt. W. Harrison, under Col. John Moore. Young Belton was promoted to second lieutenant, then to be first lieutenant, and afterwards to captain. He was in the battle of Manassas and all other engagements in which his regiment participated until wounded and captured. In the battle of Gaines's Mill he was wounded in the arm and leg, and in the face at Gettysburg, a ball passing through his jaw and root of tongue. He never fully recovered from the effects of this wound, and it finally wrecked his nervous system. He also had to endure the hardships of a prisoner at Johnson's Island and Point Lookout.

After the war, Dr. Belton went to California, going from San Francisco to Mazatlan, Mexico, and from there to Colusa, Cal. Here he married Miss Annie Green, adopted daughter of W.S. Green. Two daughters and a son survive him.

Dr. Belton stood in the front rank of hs profession, but he administered rather to the wants of the poor than the rich, and his death caused many hearts to mourn. He was highly respected and loved by all this townspeople. to interest sources and the second second second second second

OBITUARY OF DR. WILLIAM HENRY BELTON

DEATH OF ROBERT MCCARTER

Died in York District a few days since, Mr. Robert McCarter,

THE FARROW FAMILY OF LAURENS COUNTY

Source: The Laurens Advertiser February 20, 1936

The Parrow Family of Laurens and Spartanburg counties, which might appropriately be termed the Fighting Farrows, in the time of the Revolution contained five sons, four of whom early aligned themselves with the cause of liberty and independence. The fifth son was too young to enlist and could only serve to warn the fighting members of his family of the approach of the Tories. My research has led me to the conclusion that the record of the Farrow family is exceeded only by that of the Hennant family which furnished seven soldiers. The four sons who served were: John, Landon, Samuel and Thomas, but John was the only one to apply for a pension from Laurens county. Detailed record of Samuel's activities is not given herein, but it is known that he was actively engaged in the same operations as his brothers.

John Farrow, Sr., the father of the four soldiers, was born in Virginia where he married in 1750 or 1751 Rosannah Waters, the daughter of Philemon Waters (1711-1779). John Farrow died in North Carolina in 1776 while enroute from Virginia to his home in South Carolina according to information furnished by a member of the family.

John Farrow, Jr., was born on 1 October 1757 in Prince William county, Va., moved to North Carolina, lived in Spartanburg District during the Revolution, and about 1814 moved to Laurens county where he died. In the fall of 1779 while living on Enorce River in Spartanburg district, he enlisted under Captain John Ford in the regiment commanded by Colonel John Thomas, Sr. He marched with his company to General Williamson's camp on the hill opposite Augusta, Ga., and after remaining there a few days started to join General Ashe's army at Briar Creek, Ga., but upon hearing of his defeat they returned to General Williamson's camp. He was then detailed as one of the party to guard the crossing at Beach Island, and was discharged in February 1780 after serving 4 months.

During March and April, 1780, he served two months under Captain James Martindale in Colonel Brandon's regiment as a substitute for Thomas Scales and marched under Major Bullock to Cupboard Creek, Ga. From 20 July 1780 to 15 January 1781, he served under Captain Benjamin Roebuck in Colonel John Thomas' regiment. This tour was served principally in Ninety Six District and during it he was in the battle of Musgrove's Mill. From 15 January to 1 July 1781 he served under Lieutenant Thomas Farrow in the regiment of either Colonels White or Thomas, and during this period he took part in the battle of Cowpens and the siege of Ninety Six. He also served under the same officer from 1 July 1781 to 12 April 1783, and was in the engagement at Bryant's Mill on Tyger River in April 1782 where Lieutenant Farrow was wounded in the body and thigh which incapacitated him until 1 July 1782. As the home of Colonel White was "somewhat out of the way of the Tories," Lieutenant Farrow was taken there on a horse litter to recuperate while John Farrow and the remainder of his men guarded him. The Tories were unaware of the presence of Farrow's men at the home of Colonel White and were planning a surprise attack. They obtained a pilot, one of White's neighbors, to go with them and while they were discussing methods of approach, the pilot told them the half-truth that Farrow and his men were there, but neglected to mention the physical condition of Lieutenant Farrow. They immediately changed their plans as they knew "Parrow's men would fight hard." John Farrow in relating his various services apparently felt that some explanation should be given as to why his different terms followed each other in quick succession. He gave as the reason therefor that "the army was in fact the only place of security as well as the proper post of duty, the necessities of the country imperiously requiring the service of its able bodied citizens."

No record could be found in Laurens Court House of the will of John Farrow, but from data available in Washington the last payment of pension was made at Charleston, S.C. to Ker Boyce, Attorney, on II September 1843 covering the period 4 March to 4 September 1843.

Landon Farrow, the youngest of the four fighting brothers, was born on 6 January 1759 and died in Spartanburg District on 12 May 1799. He was married in January 1782 by the Reverend Hezekiah Walker to Rachel Walker who died on 27 April 1842. The issue of this marriage were:

Harmoning. Cassandra Farrow, born 8 May 1797.

According to information furnished by W.T. Farrow, a grandson of Rachel Walker and Landon Farrow, in June 1853, the only surviving children were: Chaney and Cassendra Farrow of Spartanburg, Celia Ducker of Union, and Sarah Waters of Georgia. Landon Waters the first child of Sarah Waters was born 7 May 1799.

Rosannah Huff (born 1770) on 27 January 1854, stated that Rachel and Landon Farrow lived about 4 miles from her father, John Head, in Spartanburg District in sight of Musgrove's Mill. Her father was robbed by the British and Tories who lay at the mills, in consequence of which in 1781 he left Encree River and went to North Carolina near the Catawba River, carrying his own negroes and those of Colonel Waters with him to prevent their falling into the enemy's hands. Landon Farrow went with them as a guard until they crossed Broad River. Shortly afterwards he married Rachel Walker in Spartanburg District and brought her to the vicinity of where John Head had temporarily settled and left her there with Rosannah Head as a companion. In the spring of

Sarah Farrow, born 7 December 1782; married Waters. Chaney Farrow, born 10 January 1785. Samuel Farrow, born 17 February 1787. Rachel Farrow, born 1 February 1789; married Ducker. Celia Farrow, born 30 January 1781; married Landon Farrow, born 22 May 1793; died 5 June 1801. William Farrow, born 23 May 1795.

1782 the Head family and Rachel Farrow returned to their old home near Musgrove's Mill which had been recovered from the enemy.

According to Major William H. Miles a party of Whigs were assembled at the home of Landon Farrow who was warned by Reverend Hezekiah Walker, his brother-in-law, of the approach of a band of Tories. Before they could make their escape the house was surrounded, so they barricaded it and prepared to defend themselves. The Tories tried to burn the house and one of their number was killed in the attempt. The Tories finally offered to leave if the Whigs would give them arms and ammunition, which was agreed to as the Whigs realized that they were in a desperate situation and in danger of being overpowered. One of the articles agreed upon was a pistol and Landon Farrow offered to hand it through a crack, but the Tories declined unless it was handed breech foremost which Landon was unwilling to do.

Apparently, each side distrusted the other when it came to facing the muzzle of a pistol in the hands of the opposite party, so it was finally decided that Rachel Farrow would carry the pistol to the Tories. Such was the spirit of this true pioneer woman, a fitting mate for her brave husband, that she had the courage to walk out into the open and face the besieging Tories. Her fearlessness is hard to comprehend as the Tories were ordinarily relentless and cruel in their predatory warfare and were no respecter of persons.

Major William H. Miles, who was born about 1786 was the brother of Isaac Miles, born about 1776 and Captain Landon Miles, born 1 February 1782. They were the nephews of the Farrow men, whose sister, Farrow, married Thomas Miles, born about 1741.

Another sidelight on the general situation at this time is given by Colonel William Farrow, a younger brother, who moved to Marshall county, Miss., between 1836 and 1839. During the Revolution William lived within one-half mile of Landon Farrow and frequently stayed with his brother's wife while he was away on scouting parties. Landon Farrow maintained a station at his home for the protection of the surrounding neighborhood, and one time William, who was then about 11 years of age, went there to warn the garrison of the approach of the Tories. He arrived about sundown but was unable to give warning as the Tories were already surrounding the house. He heard guns firing at the station until midnight or later as he lay all night in an old field not far away. Rachel Farrow was guarded that night by the Tories to prevent her from going for reinforcements, but Rebecca Farrow, the wife of Lieutenant Thomas Farrow, the only officer at the station, went to a man named Blalock and asked him to spread the alarm and secure reinforcements. Blalock ignored Mrs. Farrow's plea and the next morning Samuel Farrow "used him roughly" in retaliation for his refusal. The next day the Farrow Forces "gave the neighborhood a severe scouring for not coming to their assistance the night previous, and one of which they whipped was Moses Casey."

Thomas Farrow was born in Prince William county, Va., on 5 February 1755, and entered the service in the beginning of the year 1776 in Orange county, N.C., under Captain James Saunders, Colonel James Thaxton and Major William Moore. They made rendezvous at Hillsborough, then started to Cross Creek in pursuit of the Scotch Army (Tories) which was enroute to Wilmington to drive the United States troops away so the British could land. Colonel Caswell defeated the Tories as they crossed the bridge, and on their return flight they met Colonel Thaxton and surrendered unto him. The fact that a man would be a Tory when the British were winning and then change to a Whig when expediency demanded is no better demonstrated than by their actions at this time. These Tories, after surrendering to Colonel Thaxton took the oath of allegiance and were then released, with all parties present giving three cheers. Following discharge the latter part of February 1776, Thomas Farrow moved to South Carolina and on 20 June 1776 volunteered in Laurens District under Captain Benjamin Kilgore for an expedition against the Indians. From that time until 1778 he was engaged at various times along the frontiers of South Carolina, ranging from 30 to 130 miles, trying to keep the Tories and Indians in check. He was given a lieutenant's commission in 1778 (probably the latter part of the year) in the company of Captain John Ford of the 1st Spartan Regiment, and in the first of the year 1779 served for 5 months in that capacity in the lower part of the state.

About the 20th of May 1780 Lieutenant Farrow was taken prisoner by the Tories and carried to the British garrison at Ninety Six. Two months later he was tried by court martial. The danger of his situation apparently made no deep impression on Farrow as he casually dismissed the experience with the statement "they tried me, nothing proved, only I was a liberty man. Colonel Cruger, the British officer, paroled me and set me at liberty." However, he broke his parole after the British scouts threatened him and he returned to the army as the only safe place for he knew if the enemy took him as a prisoner he would be put to death.

Shortly after this Colonel John Thomas, Jr., who succeeded his father, Colonel John Thomas, Sr., who had been sent to England as a prisoner of war, called out Ford's company but as the British were in the ascendency the latter consequently refused to turn out and defend his country. Lieutenant Thomas Farrow assumed command of the company and joined Colonel Morgan at Grindal's Shoals on Pacolet River on 10 January 1781, marched with him to Cowpens and took part in the battle there on 17 January 1781. After the battle he marched as far as Island Ford, Broad River, with Morgan; then returned to South Carolina and operated with the other companies of the regiments of Colonels Brandon, Casey, Roebuck and White as the exigencies of the service required. They crossed the Savannah River at Augusta, Ga., and pursued the energy to the back part of Georgia, returning to South Carolina about 1 May 1781.

On 1 June 1781 he joined General Greene at Ninety Six and remained there until the siege was raised on 10 August 1781, when they were forced to flee to Charlotte, Mecklenburg county, N.C., as the British and Tories had virtual control of the state. Later Lieutenant Farrow returned to South Carolina with his company and was engaged in pursuit of the common enemy until 1 April 1782 when he was wounded in the battle at Bryant's Mills. Lieutenant Farrow very frankly admitted that the intervening months were a period of give and take for he said "We were after the Tories and some British with them, and sometimes they were after us." Lieutenant Farrow had been wounded twice before the engagement at Bryant's Mills but not to the extent that he was forced to leave the field.

About 1 July 1782 he returned to the service as lieutenant under Captain John Ford "who had stayed at home as a Royalist turned out-he thought the fighting was over" and served three months ranging a distance of 100 miles after the Indians and Tories on the Keowee and Oconee rivers, thence back to Ninety Six District, thence in pursuit of the enemy below Saluda River, a distance of 60 or 70 miles.

On 1 December 1782 he marched under colonels White and Roebuck to Caldwell's, and later, under the same officers went to Orangeburg District for the purpose of locating and destroying the hide-out of the Tories in the Edisto swamps. The Tories would assemble in the swamps, make raids as far as 120 miles into the up-country, killing and burning as they went, and when pursued would return to the swamp and secrete themselves for a while. They made three such raids before the expedition under Colonels White and Roebuck was organized. The Americans having at last discovered their hiding place, proceeded to kill about 20 of them, destroy 30 to 40 of their camps, and successfully broke up their raids. After this expedition Lieutenant Farrow returned home and was discharged in the Spring of 1783.

Lieutenant Thomas Farrow died in Spartanburg County on 31 December 1843, leaving no widow , but the following children:

John W. Farrow, Rebecca Styles, Sarah Farrow and Rosannah Woodruff, the issue of his first marriage to Rebecca ; Nancy Pattillo Farrow, and Pattillo Farrow, the issue of this marriage with Ann Pattillo, the widow of Harrison.

Pattillo Farrow was the executor of his father's will which was filed in the office of the Clerk of Court, Spartanburg, S.C. He was born 2 September 1796, died 18 October 1849, in Laurens, S.C. He married Jean (Jane) Strother James (12 November 1796-13 March 1880) on 2 January 1826. Their daughter Julia Farrow (2 June 1838-19 March 1910) married on 13 December 1859 Captain Homer Leonidas McGowan (10 June 1837-28 July 1873). Captain McGowan graduated from South Carolina College in 1857, was admitted to the bar in 1859, entered the Confederate army in 1861 as Captain of a company of infantry of the 3rd S.C. Regiment of Volunteers, was wounded at Savage Station in 1862, elected Commissioner in Equity in 1864, and Solicitor of the Seventh Circuit in 1868.

Pattillo and Jean Farrow were the parents of one of Laurens County's most distinguished sons, the late Rear Admiral Samuel McGowan, S.C.U.S.N., Retired, who was born in Laurens county on 1 September 1870 and died in Laurens, S.C., on 11 November 1934. They were also the parents of Pattillo H. McGowan, born 23 November 1872, a prominent newspaper man of Washington, D.C.; James Farrow McGowan; the late Jeanie McGowan (1889) wife of Charles Rutledge Holmes of Charleston; the late Lavellette McGowan (died 11 June 1934), wife of A.L. White of Spartanburg, S.C., and Rosa McGowan wife of Hamilton Cantey of New York City.

On last Monday morning Mr. G.A. Harrison, who lived on J.S. Watson's farm, about seven miles south of this city, near Phoenix, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head. Mr. Harrison was an old man, between sixty and seventy years of age, and had in his time suffered a great many misfortunes and reverses and disappointments. Brooding over his troubles, he came to the conclusion that life was not worth living, and so put an end to his existence. Trial Justice W.G. Austin, received notice early Monday morning, and acting as coroner, went to the scene and impanelled a jury to inquire into the killing. The jury of inquest consisted of the following citizens:

G.F. Ross, foreman, A.A. Dominick, E.L. Tolbart, J.M. Miller, G.M. Outzs, H.M. Wilkerson, B.M. Williams, Geo. Tettards, S.W. Dominick, Geo. Koon, Monroe Hardy, J.S. Watson, Stephen Worthington, Samuel Rampey, and Daniel Rampey. Dr. R.B. Epting was called in to examine the body as official physician. The evidence brought out by the jury leaves no doubt that it was a case of suicide deliberately planned. From the evidence

the death cannot be explained on the supposition either of foul play or of accident.

R.G. Cheatham, the first man to enter the room after the shooting, found the deceased lying on his left side, his head on a stick of wood, with a Smith & Wesson No. 32 pistol in his right hand and his thumb on the trigger. The pistol was loaded, all but one chamber, which had been recently fired.

but was not conscious at any time.

The testimony of Dr. Epting was that the ball entered above and in front of the right ear and penetrated the head ranging downward, and was lodged behind the left ear. The wound was such as would cause certain death, though not necessarily instant death.

The verdict of the jury was, in substance, that the deceased came to his death by a gunshot wound inflicted by his own hand with sucidal intent.

The remans were interred Tuesday at Mountain Creek Baptist church, in Edgefield county, of which church the unfortunate man had for many years been a consistent member. The funeral was preached by the pastor, Rev. J.L. Ouzts.

W. R. Tanner was a Confederate veteran who lived at Cowpens, Spartanburg County, SC. J. R. Gainey has acquired from his family all the remaining copies of his reminiscences, which were published in 1931. They tell the story of how one participant viewed the Civil War and relates some anecdotes of his comrades. Also included is a roster of Company C, 13th South Carolina Regiment. A must for any Civil War buff.

Faue Berry has abstracted the information found in the 1820 federal census for the over 1,500 families then ining in Chester District. (Included in this volume are 14 families headed by "free persons of colour.") This volume eliminates the need of sitting in front of a microfilm viewer to find your ancestor's family here in 1820. It is a great research aid presented in a easy to use size and format.

This is a republication of a 1885 volume on Mount Zion Baptist Church, near Inman, Spartanburg County, SC. It traces the church from its establishment as a mission of Bethlehem Baptist in 1804, through it organization in 1827, up to the history's publication in 1884. This volume, though small in size, contains a wealth of information, both historical and genealogical, on Mount Zion and its early members.

This is first in a two volume set which will include all of the Piedmont. Chester, Greenville, Spartanburg, Union, York, and Pickens Districts are in this volume. (Pickens at the time incorporated what is now Oconee County. Cherokee County was then found as part of Spartanburg, Union, and York counties.) Ms. Berry has listed all persons legible on the microfilm copy at the S. C. state archieves. She has given their name, sex, age, race, and month of death as reported by the enumerator.

1867, edited by Joseph R. Gainey. 16 pages plus index.

Rev. Tolaver Robertson kept an account of the marriages he "solemnized". This is not an unusual practice. What is unusual is that he published it in 1867. However, only one copy is known to have survived. This is a republication of the material found in it. Since marriage records were not kept by the State of South Carolina before 1911, this is a great boon to genealogists, especially those with roots in Laurens and Greenville counties. Robertson recorded 364 marriages for nearly 275 different surnames.
